

LETTERS ABOUT LITERATURE

This particular envelope really captures the spirit of LAL, we think. Even the Target logo is in the upper left corner!

The artist is an 8th grade student from Vale MS, Oregon. She wrote to us when she saw her artwork on our website (apparently after she stopped screaming in excitement, she told us). She gave us permission to use her name. Her medium? Chalk! Here's what Brecca had to say about the artwork she designed:

I'm an avid reader and when my literature teacher Mrs. Lattin asked me to do the envelope I knew exactly what I was going to draw. I put most of my favorite books on the sides and placed a book in the front with the girl in a gown. I wanted it to look like the characters were coming from the book I've always dreamed of getting my artwork to the public and out to the world sharing what I could do, but living the small town of vale there isn't that great of opportunities out there. . . . Thanks again for making one of my dreams come true!!!

- Future artist (maybe)

Brecca Marvin

From the 2011 Letters About Literature website at: http://www.lettersaboutliterature.org/envelope_art